

About the Author:

Linda Cargill has written numerous murder thriller and supernatural novels. Among her titles are The Surfer and Pool Party published by Scholastic USA. She wrote Hang Loose for Harper Collins. Scholastic UK has published her series The Dark I and II. Ereads.com/Fictionwise.com has published No Name Girl. She has no fewer than forty-eight titles in print by the German publisher Cora Verlag. These include: Face in the Falls, The Raven, She Who Watches, Volcano, The Spiral Staircase, The Louvered Window, Note in a Bottle, One Perfect Rose, The Lighthouse, River of No Return, The Oldest House, and Murder in Yellowstone, among others.

The Black Stone is her biggest and most ambitious title to date. It combines the suspense of her thriller novels with the historical sweep of her earlier Cheops Books title, To Follow the Goddess, that The Kirkus Reviews called “a spirited pageturner” and “a delightful read”. It is also a cautionary tale of what might actually happen if we let 9/11 become too much a thing of the past. 9/11 wasn’t just a one-day event. As this novel demonstrates, it was two thousand years in the making.

Linda Cargill currently resides in Tucson, Arizona with her husband, Gary, who has a law practice there and her son, Kenny, a student at the University of Arizona. Also at the same address are her Labrador Retriever, Sabaka, and her two cats, Ramses and of course Spooky.

You may reach her through her author’s website at: www.lindacargill.org or at the Cheops Books website: www.cheopsbooks.org or www.cheopsbooks.com. Her email address is: occultus@cox.net.