

King Abdullah's Tomb

Lieutenant Edward Ware flees through the streets of Petra pursued by an unseen saboteur. He takes refuge in a rose red temple built in Roman times in the Syrian Desert. "Lawrence," he thinks, "'where are you?'" The infamous Lawrence of Arabia and his band of Bedouins are his only chance to escape this trap alive. Someone shoots at him. He races into another ruined structure. He trips and plunges into a tomb where King Abdullah has lain for over one thousand years.

Why does the saboteur want Edward dead? Edward had better figure it out fast before he meets King Abdullah's fate.

King Abdullah's Tomb is the first of a series. The Second and Third Volumes, In the Shadow of the Sphinx and Captive at the Berghof, will soon be available from Cheops Books.

What People Say About Linda and Gary Cargill's Novels by Cheops Books

King Abdullah's Tomb* (second edition of Those Who Dream by Day)

The authors demonstrate a vast knowledge of time and setting; from the Lusitania's decor to the Bedouins of T.E. Lawrence, no detail is left out.

— Historical Novels Review Online

King Abdullah's Tomb follows Dora as she tries to find out what really was behind the sinking of the Lusitania, focusing on a mysterious second explosion. Her investigation carries her across the world from Ireland to Arabia in this thrilling tale of mystery and adventure.

— Small Press, Bookwatch, Midwest Library Review

A fascinating account of ... the start of World War I.

— LibraryThing

Another historical novel worth reading,

— Bookviews by Alan Caruba

The Black Stone:

Ominous buildup ... apocalyptic climax.

— The Kirkus Reviews

The author bringing Osama Ben Laden into the mix brought back some very haunting memories and had me wondering what Osama has been up to these days. It reminded me of how dangerous a man he really is.

— Midwest Book Review

To Follow the Goddess:

Cargill's portrayal of Helen as supporter of the people and clever, if misunderstood, female in a world of men — as opposed to the more familiar fickle housewife — keeps this classic, action-packed tale bubbling to the last huzzah ...

— The Kirkus Reviews

Cleverly manages to weave threads of myth, legend, history and religion in the Vergilian manner ...

— The Pennsylvania Classical Association Newsletter

King Abdullah's Tomb (ISBN 978-0-9627258-9-0, paperback, ISBN 978-0-9627258-3-8, cloth hardback, 355 pages) is available in most bookstores or by calling BCH Fulfillment & Distribution at 1-800-431-1579.

Cheops Books | 8746 E. Wallen Ridge Drive, Tucson, AZ 85710-6235 USA | Tel: 520-225-0209 | occultus@cox.net | <http://www.CheopsBooks.org>